COX MAY PUT SALOONS OUT OF POLITICS

Governor-elect States Position for the First Time since Election

HE PLANS WAR ON SLUSH FUND

Ohioan Greeted Warmly by President and Many other Democratic Leaders

WASHINGTON, NOV. 16.—After being greeted warmly by President Wilson and about every other Democratic leader in Washington, Governor-elect James M. Cox of Ohio today told newspaper correspondents that the next general assembly of the Buckeye State, which convenes early in January, will be asked to enact legislation that will eliminate the saloon from politics.

The governor-elect said a corrupt practices act also be put in the statute books which is expected to forever prevent the use of slush funds in Ohio elections again. These emphatic declarations came from the next Ohio governor when he outlined the major tasks of the Ohio legislature after he had conferred with the President for more than an hour.

Steeple-Jack Falls 60 Feet

He hung with one hand clenched over the rim of the stack until the heat forced him to change to the other hand.

Rambo kept changing hands five minutes, holding tight first with the one and then with the other in an effort to hang on until help came.

Finally the heat became so intense, the pain in his hands so great, he was forced to let go.

He dropped 60 feet to the ground and was picked up unconscious. His shoulder and arm are fractured and he is believed to be fatally injured.

Harry Baskin Bankrupt, Said

Word was received here last night that Harry Baskin, proprietor of Baskin's Department stores in Massillon and this city, has gone into bankruptcy and has made application in the federal courts for a receiver. It is said an effort will be made to run the stores at both places under the receivership. Mr. Baskin's father died in Massillon September 14.

JUDGE'S AUTO KILLS MAN.

"Don't Tell Mama," Dying Boy's Message

NEW YORK, NOV. 16.—"I am going to die, doctor. Please don't tell mother."

So said thirteenlyear old Francis McGarry of 357 East Thirtieth street when Dr. Rea in Bellevue hospital placed him on the operating table today.

Francis, a pupil in Public School 116, East Thirty-second street, had been struck by a motor truck of the Manhattan Sand Company, 356 Washington street while being chased by fellow pupils at the noon recess.

Rail Men Say Strike May Come

CLEVELAND, OHIO, NOV. 16.—The nation-wide railroad strike averted a few months ago by the passage of the Adamson eight-hour bill, may be called.

Officials of the great railroad brotherhoods were surveying the situation with closest attention today—and especially were they watching intently the suits started against the constitutionality of the Adamson legislation by big eastern and western railroads.

A strike can be called on a few hours notice. This was made plain here today by Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

"It will not be necessary," said Mr. Stone, "to take another strike vote in order to call a general strike."

The labor chief, however, declined to state that this action would be taken in the event the railroads succeed in holding up operation of the bill.

GERMANS RETIRE IN MACEDONIA

Gen. Von Mackensen Said to be Retiring and Burning Towns in His Wake

PARIS, NOV. 16.—More than a million men and 5000 guns are engaged along the 40 miles of the Somme front in the most savage fighting the world has ever known. While the gigantic armies roll backward and forward over the shell-scarred fields, guns more ponderous than any ever seen before, thunder in the rear, pouring their curtains of steel. Behind the fighting lines are tens of thousand of reserves ready to plunge into the bloody maelstrom as their comrades die or fall from exhaustion.

Every death dealing instrument known to twentieth century warfare is in use. Gas and "tear" shells spread death and suffering in their most dreadful forms.

Noted Speaker Comes Friday

Dr. E. T. Hagerman, who is scheduled for a lecture here Friday evening has spoken several hundred times in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia alone. Every Lyceum committee that booked him during his first year on the lecture platform has given him a return engagement.

One of the six most important pastorates held by Dr. Hagerman during his ministry was Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where he remained for three years. There, as elsewhere, he had great success in appealing to men. In fact, he is called a man's preacher.

Dr. Hagerman is called on widely as an after-dinner speaker, showing clearly he is able to interest and entertain. He is also a favorite speaker at teachers' institutes. He has spoken in many cities from three to six times.

Deutschland Iron Sold As Souvenirs

NEW LONDON, CONN., NOV. 16.—Iron ballast weighing 120 tons, brought over on the German submarine merchantman Deutschland, is to be converted into "Deutschland iron men," to be sold as souvenirs for the benefit of German widows and orphans of the war, it was stated today.

The souvenirs will be a little smaller than an American silver dollar and they will bear impression in relief showing the Deutschland and Captain Koenig's signature. It is said that some of the metal came from European battlefields.

The Deutschland has been repainted a dark battleship gray and is now considered ready to make a start at any minute on her return trip across the Atlantic.

Widow's Dream Leads To Recovery Of Body

DUNCANNON, PA., NOV. 16.—A dream of his widow led to the finding of the body of Gustav Dill, of Duncannon, who was drowned in the Susquehanna river three weeks ago.

Dill was drowned while crossing the river from a hunting expedition, when his boat overturned. Experienced rivermen at once started to drag the river, missing, so they believed no current or eddy in which the body might have lodged.

Mrs. Dill was driven almost frantic by the failure to find the body. Several nights ago she had a dream. In her vision she saw every detail and circumstance of the finding of the body.

She was unable at first to prevail upon any person to go to search for the body. Finally two old rivermen, the incredulous, agreed to take up the search again. Mrs. Dill described the place where she had "seen" the finding of the body. Within five minutes after the men had thrown in their grappling hooks, the body was hooked and brought to the surface.

Couple Marry And Surprise Their Friends

Thursday afternoon at four o'clock Mrs. Minnie Mayew, daughter of James Spurtz and Christy Burkherty, a prominent attorney, were married by Rev. C. C. Irwin, at his home on Orchard street.

The news of the marriage was a complete surprise to friends of the couple. The bride comes to this city from Keene township, and is favorably known among members of her profession. The bride was formerly the wife of John Mayhew, but divorced her.

Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty have gone to housekeeping in the home owned by the bride on North Terrace street.

TEAR DOWN HOUSE WHERE T. R. WAS BORN

NEW YORK, NOV. 16.—The old two-story house in Twentieth street in which Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was born October 27, 1858, is to be torn down to make room for a modern business place, it was announced today. Several years ago the Roosevelt Home club was organized with membership fee to preserve the building as a place of historic interest, but owing to the lapse of payment on a mortgage, the property was recently sold under foreclosure.

Wilson Lead Is Not Hurt By Recount

SAN FRANCISCO, NOV. 16.—O. K. Cushing, chairman of the Democratic committee, declared today that the official count of votes in California for Republican and Democratic electors would show no material changes.

"There is not a chance on earth that Hughes' lead will be affected," he said. All but 12 counties have finished the official count.

Many housewives are finding profit as well as pleasure in pursuing the festive cottontails. They readily sell for 30 cents and many have been sold in the past week at 35. WOOD FIRES COME BACK, ROUTING COAL

WOOSTER, NOV. 16.—The hickory log in an open hearth fire may be a thing of history in Ohio, but something akin to it is evident in Wooster just now, where wood is becoming a competitor of coal.

Abnormally high coal prices have given the farmer an opening and many land owners with large timber lots are hauling wood to Wooster, where the city plan is buying it to burn in stove or furnace.

Wood is selling at $2 to $3 a load and the claim is made that a load of wood such as the farmers deliver will produce nearly as many heat units as a ton of coal.

New Yorkers Give The Most To Democrats

NEW YORK, NOV. 16.—New York State subscribed nearly one-third of the Democratic campaign fund, Acting Treasurer W. D. Jamison announced. Of the total sum of $1,555,888 subscribed to date, New York was first with $456,870, Illinois was second with $230,953, Pennsylvania was third with $84,922, and Missouri was fourth. Wichita Falls, Texas, was first to respond of the 2 000 towns asked to subscribe $1.00 each to make up the deficit of $255,000.

At the Republican National Headquarters, Laurence Green, secretary to Mr. Hughes, denied the report that the defeated candidate would enter a law partnership with George W. Wickersham and Henry W. Taft. Chairman Wilcox was absent from the headquarters for the first time since the election. It was stated that he was called to court as a witness.

Classified as to parties, there were 92 Republican women elected and 59 Democratic. Only 17 Kansas counties will not have women county office holders, according to the reports.

NEW YORK, NOV. 16.—Radiating as much glee as if he had been elected president of the United States again, Colonel Roosevelt chatted freely but privately with 1920 boomers and newspapermen at the Hotel Langdon here.

Asked to comment on the defeat of Charles E. Hughes, the colonel broadly grinned and came back: "I am in the same position as the mate to whom the captain of a New Bedford ship said, 'What I want from you, sire, is silence and damn little of that.' That will be my course for maybe a few months."

The colonel, on visiting his hotel here for the first time since the defeat of Mr. Hughes, found letters and telegrams in abundance, reading in substance: "Had you instead of Hughes, been the Republican candidate, Wilson would have been beaten. Get ready quick for 1920."

Coshocton City Hospital Crowded, Doctors Urge New Addition Be Started

With every private room in the City hospital occupied and patients waiting to be accommodated, Coshocton physicians are urging that the new addition be started at an early date.

For the construction of the addition $25,000 was secured by council thru a sale of bonds. This was found insufficient because of the high cost of labor and material. Consequently the letting of the contract was delayed in an effort to secure a better bid.

Recently the plans were returned to the architects with instructions to revise them so that cost will be covered by the bond issue. It is thot the revised plans will be returned soon. City officials hope to advertise the work early in the year in order to have the addition begun as soon as weather will permit.

KING & ZERBE

SUGAR BEETS FOR DAIRY COWS.

Sugar beets and mangels tend to increase milk production when fed to dairy cows, but experiments conducted at the Ohio Experiment Station show that corn silage is far more economical to feed. Because of this fact these dairy experts do not advise the feeding of beets except for high records where cost is a minor consideration, or where the number of cows is too small to permit the use of a silo.

Cows fed beets had keen appetites and ate more feed because of the stimulating effect of this root crop. After 10 years' work the Ohio Station has found that two pounds of dry matter can be produced in the form of silage at less cost than one pound in the form of beets. Convenience in feeding is in favor of silage.

HORSES WISE IN CHOOSING HAY.

That horses have their peculiar tastes in selecting the most palatable feeds is shown by recent investigations at the Ohio Experiment Station, in which some hays were eaten with great relish while others were only partly consumed. Mixed clover and timothy seemed to satisfy their appetites best, and brome grass was also to their liking. Timothy hay stood third. None of the horses were fond of tall oat grass, while bluegrass and redtop were also near the bottom of the list of palatable grasses.

WOMEN OF OHIO.

Women Everywhere Endorse this "Favorite"

Cambridge, Ohio.—"I used 'Favorite Prescription' and found it an ideal woman's medicine. I was run down, dragging around, with lost ambition and strength. I used several bottles of this medicine and found it built me up nicely, and the permanent benefit was simply marvelous. I never have had to use it again. I give credit for my health to this sovereign remedy. I have given Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription to my daughter also."—Mrs. D. W. Nossett, 152 South 9th St., Cambridge, Ohio.

Thousands of women who are now blessed with robust health cannot understand why thousands of other women continue to worry and suffer from ailments peculiar to women when they can obtain for a trifling sum Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which will surely and quickly banish all pain, distress and misery and restore the womanly functions to perfect health.

Young mothers who preserve the charms of face and figure in spite of an increasing family and the care of growing children are always to be envied. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives the strength and health upon which happy motherhood depends. It practically does away with the pains of maternity. It enables the mother to nourish the infant life depending on her, and enjoy the hourly happiness of watching the development of a perfectly healthy child.

WOMAN GIVEN TWO DAYS

Philadelphia, Pa.—"One year ago I was very sick and I suffered with pains in my side and back until I nearly went crazy. I went to different doctors and they all said I had female trouble and would not get any relief until I would be operated on. I had suffered for four years before this time, but I kept getting worse the more medicine I took. Every month since I was a young girl I had suffered with cramps in my sides at periods and was never regular. I saw your advertisement in the newspaper and the picture of a woman who had been saved from an operation and this picture was impressed on my mind. The doctor had given me only two more days to make up my mind so I sent my husband to the drug store at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and believe me, I only took four doses before I felt a change and when I had finished the third bottle I was cured and never felt better. I grant you the privilege to publish my letter and am only too glad to let other women know of my cure."—Mrs. THOS. McGONIGAL, 3432 Hartville Street, Phila., Pa.

[illegible] on his way to the police station [illegible]-all guarded," Ember affirmed with [illegible] and a grim smile. "I have his [illegible]ession, roughly jotted down, but [illegible]gned, and attested by several wit[illegible]ses. . . . I'm glad you were [illegible] the way; it was rather a painful [illegible]ene, and disorderly; it wouldn't have [illegible]been pleasant for Mrs. Whitaker. . . . We had the deuce of a time clear[illegible]ng the theater: human curiosity is a [illegible]remendously persistent and resistant force. And then I had some trouble dealing with the misplaced loyalty of the staff of the house. . . . However, eventually I got Max to myself—[illegible]done, that is, with several men I could depend on. And then I heartlessly put him through the third degree—forestalling my friends, the police. By dint of asserting as truths an[illegible]personal discoveries what I merely suspected, I broke down his denials—[illegible]fie owned up, doggedly enough, and [illegible] with that singular pride which I [illegible]turned to associate with some phase of homicidal mania. . . . I won't distress you with details: the truth is that Max was quite mad on the subject of his luck: he considered it, as I suspected, indissolubly associated with Sara Law. When poor Custer committed suicide, he saved Max from [illegible]cide and innocently showed him the way to save himself thereafter, when he felt in peril by assassinating Hamilton and later Thurston. Drummond only cheated a like fate, and you"—turning to Whitaker—"escaped by the narrowest shave. Max hadn't meant to run the risk of putting you out of the way unless he thought it absolutely necessary, but the failure of his silly play in rehearsal tonight, coupled with the discovery that you were in the theater, drove him temporarily insane with hate, chagrin, and jealousy."

Concluding, Ember rose. "I must follow him now to the police station. . . . I shall see you both soon again—?"

The woman gave him both her hands. "There's no way to thank you," she said—"our dear, dear friend!"

"No way," Whitaker echoed regretfully.

"No way?" Ember laughed quietly, holding her hands tightly clasped. "But I see you together—happy—Oh, believe me, I am fully thanked!"

Bowing, he touched his lips gently to both hands, released them with a little sigh that ended in a contented chuckle, exchanged a short, firm grasp with Whitaker, and left them. . . .

For some minutes he wandered to and fro in the gangway, pausing now and then on the borders of the deserted stage. There were but few of the house staff visible, and those few were assiduously busy with preparations to close up. Beyond the dismal gutter of the footlights the auditorium was cavernous and shadowy, peopled only by rows of chairs ghostly in their dust-cloths. The street entrances were already closed, locked and dark. On the stage a single clustered cluster of electric bulbs made visible the vast, gloomy dome of the flies and the whitewashed walls against which sections of scenery were stacked like cards. An electrician in his street clothes sprawled beside the doorkeeper's cubicle at the stage entrance, smoking a cigarette and conferring with the doorman while subjecting Whitaker to a curious and antagonistic stare. The muffled rumble of their voices was the only sound audible, aside from an occasional racket of footwheels in the gangways as one actor after another left his dressing room and hastened to the street, keen-set for the clash of gossiping tongues in theatrical clubs and restaurants.

Gradually the building grew more and more empty and silent, until at length Whitaker was left alone with the shadows and the two employees. These last betrayed signs of impatience. He himself felt a little sympathy for their temper. Women certainly did take an unconscionable time to dress! . . .

At length he heard them hurrying along the lower gangway, and turned to join his wife at the stage entrance. Elise passed on, burdened with two heavy handbags, and disappeared into the rain-washed alleyway. The electrician detached his shoulders from the wall, ground his cigarette under heel and lounged over to the switchboard.

Mary Whitaker turned her face, shadowy and mystical, touched with her faint and inscrutable smile, up to her husband's.

"Wait," she begged in a whisper. "I want to see"—her breath checked—"the end of it all."

They heard hissings and clickings at the switchboard. The gangway lights vanished in a breath. The single cluster stand on the stage disappeared—and the house was blotted out utterly with its extinguishment. There remained alight only the single dull bulb in the doorman's cubicle.

"Black out," she said in a gentle and regretful voice: "the last exit: Curtain—End of the Play!"

"No," he said in a voice of sublime confidence—"no; it's only the prologue curtain. Now for the play, dear heart . . . the real play . . . life . . . love . . ."

COX MAY PUT

White House one was taking his turn with nearly 100 others who wished to see the president. A clerk announced to the president that "Governor Cox of Ohio wishes to see you." The president jumped up, rushed to the door of his private office and smiled broadly as clasped Mr. Cox by the hand. "Come in here," he said. Congratulations were warm and hearty between the Governor-elect and the President-elect.

Davis Will Help.

John W. Davis, solicitor general of the United States, has agreed with Governor-elect Cox to outline a corrupt practices bill.

For the first time after the election Mr. Cox publicly discussed his ideas with reference to the elimination of the saloons as a political influence. If necessary to accomplish the purpose the incoming governor favors radical legislation. He has two ways of getting at the problem now under consideration.

The first method is a change in the licensing system whereby saloonkeepers would be given indefinite license to continue during good behavior. If anything like the present licensing system is to remain Governor Cox will insist that the license granting period be changed from October, just before election, to June.

Method Of Work.

Also he will urge legislation making it impossible for any official having to do with any part of the licensing system to have any connection with a political organization. Other legislative suggestions to be made by Governor Cox in his message to the general assembly will include the complete elimination of liability insurance companies as competitors with the [illegible] state workmen's compensation; financial relief for the larger cities of the state and an absent voters' law.

Value Of Life Woodman Film, Seen By Many

"The Value of Life" was the name of the film shown at the Utahna theatre Wednesday and Thursday under the supervision of the Modern Woodmen of America. The pictures showed how members of the fraternity are cared for at the Woomen sanatorium located twelve miles northwest of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Tubercular patients are cared for at this institution where more than 2,500 members have been entirely cured or greatly benefitted.

The picture is being shown all over the United States in an effort to educate the people in the care and treatment of tuberculosis and how to live healthfully.

FAST GAME SCHEDULED ON RED SEA GRIDIRON

Coshocton football fans will see one of the fastest players of the season Sunday afternoon when Frank Love goes on the local backfield, in the game with the Dennison P. H. A. C. eleven. Love played on the local high and the Barberton Eagle football squads.

The Dennison contingent is a heavy one, however, the Independents expect to be too fast for the visitors.

IT'S TO PLAY UHRICHSVILLE.

The Central High football team will go to Uhrichsville Saturday where they will play the High school squad of that place. The Jet and Scarlet representatives have worked diligently this week in preparation for a hard game. For the past five years there has been considerable rivalry between the two schools and it is expected the game Saturday will be strongly contested. Coshocton will be somewhat handicapped in this game as several of the players who have been in the games at home will be unable to go to Uhrichsville.

FRENCH TAKE

Tremendous losses mark this new stage of the grand engagement of the Somme. The field is thick with corpses, some of which have lain for days amidst piles of wounded.

The French nave recaptured the portion of the village of Pressoire on the Somme front, which the Germans occupied yesterday, the Paris war office announces.

British In Drive.

On the eastern end of the line British troops have again assumed the offensive, defeating the Bulgarians in the region of the river Struma and capturing the village of Karakaska.

French and Russian troops on the Macedonian front are now within four miles of Monastir, it is announced officially in Paris. The war office says the pursuit of the defeated Bulgarians continues.

The retirement of German-Bulgarian troops in Macedonia to new positions prepared for them in the Cerna region is announced by the Berlin war office.

Von Mackensen Retreating.

Field Marshal von Mackensen's army in the Rumanian province of Dobrudja is in retreat, the Petrograd war office announces, burning villages as it falls back.

Increasing pressure by the Russo-Rumanian army in Dobrudja, which rallied after its severe defeat by von Mackensen last month, has been in evidence for several days. Bucharest reported a further advance yesterday towards the important Tchernavoda-Constanza railroad, which the Teutonic allies captured in their drive. Berlin today entered a denial of the Rumanian claim and its report on the Dobrudja campaign chronicled only encounters between advanced detachments.

A Duel Which Became a Farce

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"I have told you, suh," said Colonel Bunker, "that a solemn thing could easily be turned into a farce. A duel is a very solemn thing—very solemn. And yet I have seen one or two of them turned into a farce by a slight incident. I will illustrate, suh.

"At the battle of Chantilly I received a pistol bullet in the shoulder. It lies there among the muscles, and the surgeon advised me to let it remain for awhile. It did not bother me long, and I was back with my command. In fact, suh, that bullet did not give me much inconvenience until after the wah. Then I felt that the surgeons must dig it out. I went to one in our own town. His name was Richards, and he was not only a good surgeon, but a thorough gentleman. He found the bullet and extracted it without any difficulty.

"'I have been told,' said the surgeon, 'that you killed seventeen of the enemy with your own hands at that battle. I don't blame you for feeling rather proud of that record.'

"'But it was only eleven, suh, and not seventeen.'

"'I have it on good authority, colonel, that the number was seventeen.'

"This led to high words, and I demanded satisfaction, to which the surgeon replied:

"'Willingly, colonel, willingly. I shall esteem it a high honor to cross blades with you.'

"Well, he was a cool hand, suah enough. It looked as if he had intended to pick a quarrel with me. I sent a friend to him, and a duel was quickly arranged. He had the choice of the weapons, and he chose rapiers. That suited me all right. The bullet had been taken from my left shoulder, and nothing ailed my right.

"We had to go about two miles to find a spot where the affair could be brought off. It was within 300 feet of a farmhouse, and the grove which hid us from the highway was an open one. The farmer was in a distant field at work, and his wife seemed to have gone away for the day. In the gardens surrounding the house were half a dozen hives of bees, and just over the fence from them was a pasture in which five or six mules were grazing. As we were on the other side of the garden no one knew what took place until after things had happened. The farce, therefore, took us by surprise.

"Now, suh, here is what happened on the other side of the house as a negro afterward described it to us: One of the mules leaned against the fence to rub his itching hide. The fence was old and weak, and a section of it was pushed down. The mule that did it led the way into the garden, and the others followed him. They did not find much to eat there, and they began inspecting the beehives. One of them got a sting on the nose, and he wheeled and kicked the hive over. Of co'se there was a row on at once. A thousand bees, mo' or less, came flying out, and they made it very unhappy for the mules.

"There was no fence on our side of the house, and the mules came galloping in our direction. There were bees ahead of them, bees clinging to them and more bees in chase. Befo' we could understand what had happened the mules and bees were among us. Principals and seconds were treated alike. Each had a score or more of the insects in personal attention upon him. There was nothing to do but run befo' the storm.

"To our left and forty rods away was a field of growing cotton. The stalks were high and offered us a chance to brush the insects away. The four of us and the surgeon in attendance all started for this field. I think, suh, we destroyed about half an acre of cotton and the mules about twice as much. I remember that it cost us $20 to settle with the farmer and that he had no mo' use of any of the mules for a month to come.

"When we finally climbed the fence and got back to the spot on which we had been standing when the riot commenced, my antagonist and myself were so blind that we could scarcely see to pick up our rapiers. Our seconds were still worse off. I did not look for the duel to be resumed, but the doctor was hot for it.

"'Colonel Bunker,' he said, 'you impugned my honah. You denied, suh, in the face of my assertion that you killed seventeen men at the battle of Chantilly, and this affair must go on to its legitimate end.'

"'But I only killed eleven, suh,' I replied. 'I counted them as they fell and put the number down in my notebook befo' I left the spot.'

"'Then, colonel, you have that note book still?'

"'I have, suh.'

"'And you can show it to me as proof that you were right and I was wrong?'

"'Most certainly, doctor.'

"'Then I withdraw what seemed to be an imputation on your honah, and if you will stop at my office on the way home we will pick the stingers out of each other as well as we can and shake hands and be good friends.'

"And thus, suh, concluded our affair, though we were both badly punished by the bees. A year later I was his second in an affair of honah with another gentleman, and he run that gentleman through the body befo' the fight was a minute old. He handled his rapier as I had seldom seen it handled, and, perhaps, the bees and the mules came just in time to save my life."

Tried to Fool the Natives.

James Francis Dwyer, author of "The White Waterfall," tells in the New York Times the following story of an American sleight of hand artist who visited the Fijis: A planter complained of the laziness of the natives and the prestidigitator made an experiment. He assembled a dozen of the natives, mumbled some words over a green coconut, sliced the nut and extracted a bright sovereign from the inside. He explained that his mystical chant was necessary to produce the coin, but he was quite willing to say the magical words at 4 o'clock that afternoon over all coconuts that should be brought to the house. The news spread like a prairie fire. Men, women and children were busy climbing after nuts, and when 4 o'clock came there were thousands of cocoanuts piled up waiting for the blessing that would make their owners rich.

The magician was astounded with the result of his trick. He looked out at the waiting islanders, many of whom were holding their knives in their hands ready to hack for the hidden gold the moment the words were said; then he turned to the planter.

"I—I don't think they're the right kind of people to stand a joke," he stammered. "If you don't mind I'll slip out the back way and get back to the town on foot."

Ropes Save Five From Sea.

When the barge Sterling of New York, laden with coal consigned from Philadelphia to Boston, sprang a leak and sank five miles southwest of Block Island, Rhode Island, Captain Edward Olsen, with his crew of four men, jumped into the sea with ropes about their bodies thrown from the tug Patience and were saved.

The Sterling was being towed with a barge. When the leak was discovered Captain Olsen and his men worked at the pumps to save the craft. They were preparing to abandon her, however, when a heavy sea struck the barge and she foundered in twenty-five fathoms of water. Quick work on the tug saved the men's lives.

CUT THIS OUT

If you know someone who is troubled with head noises, or Catarrhal Deafness, cut out this formula, and hand it to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. Recent experiments have proved conclusively that Catarrhal Deafness, head noises, etc., were the direct cause of constitutional disease, and that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporize with the complaint and seldom, if ever, effect a permanent cure. This being so, much time and money has been spent of late by a noted specialist in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic that would quickly dispel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The effective prescription which was eventually formulated, and which has aroused the belief that deafness will soon be extinct, is given below in understandable form, so that anyone can treat themselves in their own home at little expense.

Secure from Wimmer-Arnold Drug Co., or your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar, stir until dissolved. Take one tableful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat, are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh; therefore, there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person, who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial.

For sale by Wimmer-Arnold Co.

Aluminum Display Is Attractive

Much attention is being attracted by the window display. The raw material, from which the ware is made, is shown. Articles in the window include Belgian and U. S. canteens, which are all aluminum. Belgium has been supplied with thousands of these canteens by the Wear-Ever firm.

A complete camping outfit, of 36 pieces, is also attracting notice.

Gets Copy Of Fine Painting

Attorney F. E. Pomerene has received a beautiful sepia copy of the mural painting, "Rip Van Winkle," which was painted recently by Arthur Woelfle, formerly of this city, and which adorns the Tod House at Youngstown. Woelfle worked on the painting most of the summer. It consists of five scenes created from Irving's masterpiece.

Musical Show A Top Notcher

Eddie Collins' big Revue opened a three days' engagement at the Sixth Street Theatre last night, and proved to be one of the most pleasing musical shows that has played Coshocton. Eddie Collins himself is a comedian of the old school, and his role of the Irish character is of the type true to life and kept the audience laughing until the final curtain. Powers and Wilson offered their dancing specialty which was received with approval by the audience. Florence Wilmot is a clever dancer. P. J. Carroll is a singer of unusual merit and the Bostonian Trio rendered several popular selections in a manner that pleased. The chorus is graceful and well trained. Taken as a whole the performance is meritorius, clean and the company should play to good houses today and Saturday.

Asks Arrest Of President Is Locked Up

But despite his espousal of the cause of pacificism, Lockwith began a little war of his own when his arrest was ordered. It took three policemen and numerous bumps and bruises to get him from the courtroom. He was held for observation.

Ducks Gone; Not Molested

The cold and blustery weather of the past few days has brot many ducks and geese from Canadian rivers and lakes and it is said that early in the week literally hundreds of the birds were to be seen on the Muskingum near the mouth of Wills Creek. Few of the birds have been killed as hunters have been devoting their attention to rabbits.

Word was received Thursday night that the three sons of Mrs John Stanton, who are in Canada would be unable to reach here in time to attend the funeral of their mother to be held Sunday morning at ten o'clock. Funeral services will be held at the M. E. church at Warsaw
